

Calculators have come a long way in a short time.

They've gotten a lot smaller. A lot more sophisticated. A lot more economical.

And since the beginning, Canon calculators have been in the vanguard of the calculator revolution.

Canon makes calculators for one reason: we believe we do it better than anyone else.

Not just in sheer number or variety. We've built our reputation on quality. Reliability. And performance.

Our SX series programmable calculators are unique in their class, with conversational capability, alphanumeric printout, and 48-character tape width.

Our printing calculators combine advanced electronics with the simplicity of adding-machine-like keyboard.

And our line of personal calculators includes the world's first pocket-size printer.

Ask your local dealer about the full line of Canon calculators.

We've helped make calculators what they are today. If you know how far they've come, that's saying something.

Smarter. Simpler. Trustier.
